

AUTOPSY TO-DAY ON BODY OF YOUNG FOSTER---WARRANT FOR DISBROW?

Good Ground Mystery Nearing Solution-- "There Was Foul Play," Says District Attorney-- Missing Rival is in His Father's Home at Richmond Hill--Eye Witness Tells Story of Murder on Tianna Bay.

GOOD GROUND, June 18.—"I feel almost sure now that there was foul play somewhere in the deaths of Clarence Foster and Miss Lawrence. The facts that I have learned warrant a thorough investigation. I have ordered that the body of young Foster be exhumed this afternoon, and that an autopsy be performed at once. Dr. John A. Benjamin, of Riverhead, will assist Coroner Nugent in the autopsy."

"I feel at this time that a warrant for Louis Disbrow's arrest should be issued immediately."

This statement was made this afternoon by District Attorney Smith to an Evening World reporter.

Foster's body was taken from the grave shortly after 2.30 o'clock.

The District Attorney reached here at 11.30 and was met by Coroner Nugent and Pinkerton Detective Fields.

The three were driven to the Wells House, where they entered a private room and remained in conference for over two hours.

The mystery was discussed in all its phases. The detective made a verbal report of his investigations, and the District Attorney, after familiarizing himself with all the details of the case, took personal charge of it.

It was decided that the investigators should ride out to Tunnell's Inn and there go over the entire ground. Before leaving for Tunnell's Inn, Mr. Smith made his statement to The Evening World reporter.

The District Attorney said he had heard nothing from the Disbrows thus far to-day. He believed, he added, that they've had abundant time in which to make good all the bad debts of the missing man and that he should have been produced here to-day.

Roland B. Miles, a lawyer of Northport, representing Louis Disbrow, arrived here late this afternoon to see District Attorney Smith. The District Attorney was out at Tunnell's Inn at the time and the lawyer left the following information for him:

"Tell the District Attorney," said Mr. Miles, "that I have settled all Louis Disbrow's debts."

"Tell him that Louis Disbrow is at Richmond Hill with his parents and that whenever the District Attorney has any accusation to make against that young man, I will produce him."

Mr. Miles then left on a west-bound train.

BOATMAN TELLS STORY OF MURDER ON TIANNA BAY.

Here is the story told by Otto Schwanecke, a boatman of Centre Moriches, who says that last Monday night he saw young Clarence Foster and "Dimple" Lawrence killed, after a battle on the moonlit waters of Tianna Bay.

Last Monday night Schwanecke lay asleep in one of the fleet of catboats anchored on the west shore of Tianna Bay, not more than 500 feet north of Tunnell's boat landing. He had gone down the bay in a flat skiff to get over the bar early on a fishing trip. The night was chilly and he left the skiff and lay for shelter in the well of one of the yachts.

It was long after midnight when he was awakened by a man's cry. Peering over the stern of the boat, he saw in the middle of the bay two boats. In one stood a man calling to a boat ahead in which were a man and woman.

THE BOATS CRASH.

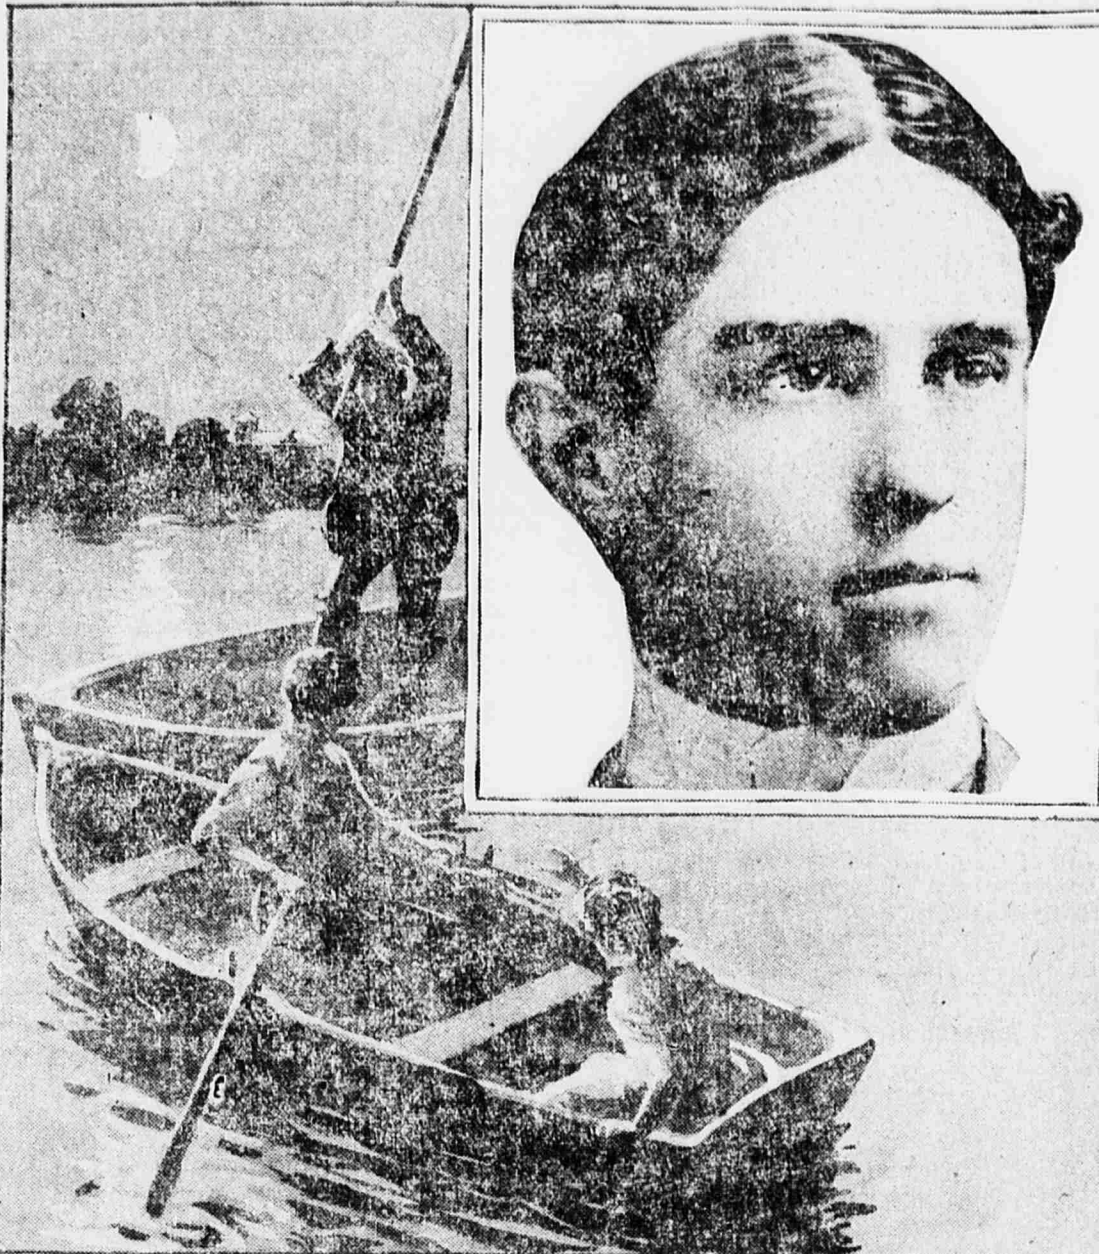

The boats came together with a crash, and the man beside the woman sprang to his feet. The skiff careened and seemed about to capsize.

"Sit down or we'll upset!" screamed the woman, and dragging the man down she righted the boat.

Angry words passed between the men, but the wind was blowing inshore, and Schwanecke could not catch what was said.

Then in the clear moonlight, the bayman says, he saw the flash of an oar through the air. It swept across the woman and descended full on the forehead of her companion, knocking him into the water.

The woman screamed. Schwanecke threw himself full length in the bottom of the yacht. He was in an agony of fear and horror. Knowing that murder was being done, he felt it his duty to cry out, to spring into the water to the injured man's assistance, but fear conquered him, and he lay a craven in the bottom of the yacht until silence fell upon the water.

ASSAILANT ROWS AWAY.

When his courage returned he peered again over the stern of the yacht. An empty boat floated on the water. The girl was gone. Her companion had disappeared. Several hundred feet down the bay the other man sat alone in the boat. For full ten minutes he did not stir. Then, seizing the oars, he pulled with all his power toward the shore. Schwanecke noted the sinister creaking of the oarlocks. The noise seemed to irritate the oarsman and he pulled with desperation, heading his skiff toward the narrow strip of beach fronting the Tunnell house. He struck the shore above the pier, jumped out and drew the boat for up on the beach out of the reach of the tide, then turned and ran noiselessly across the sand until he disappeared among a clump of trees at the top of the bluff.

STRANGER DESCRIBED.

Schwanecke could not describe the man's features. He was hatless, slim and not tall. "I think I could identify his figure if I saw him again," said the bayman. "I went about my fishing Tuesday and kept my mouth shut because I didn't want to get into any trouble."

Schwanecke's story receives confirmation through William B. Squires, keeper of the bathhouse attached to Tunnell's Hotel. To-day Squires admitted that one hundred yards from where the boat which had been used by Foster was docked lay a rowboat belonging to his brother, Frederic Squires. Tuesday morning this boat was found neatly beached fully three hundred yards north of where it lay the night before. Its keel was damp, though the tide had not reached it, and the oars showed signs of usage. Besides, there were footprints leading from it in the direction of the woods.

FIFTEEN PERSONS HURT IN ELEVATOR AT MACY'S.

were also taken away in Macy's delivery wagons. When the ambulances had completed one trip they would return for others of the injured.

So far as could be learned the only man in the elevator at the time of the accident was John Harrigan, the colored operator, and he escaped with scalp wounds and contusions. Mrs. Hill, one of the injured was not taken to a hospital, but was sent straight to her home.

While the work of rescue was going on the news of the accident had spread, and the streets in the neighborhood of the store, the store itself and particularly the basement, were black with people, many in a frenzy of excitement at the fear that some friend or relative had been injured. The reserves under Capt. Chapman strove to keep order and after a time managed to clear the streets.

The elevator was inspected last night and everything appeared then to be in perfect working order. Representatives of Macy & Co. say that the elevator was regularly inspected by representatives of the Otis Company.

located, to which I was going, we heard a snapping above and suddenly there was a crash. The elevator above us had fallen and crashed into us. The ten or twelve other women in the elevator with me screamed for a moment, but as we were all so close together, we were unable to learn anything definite. I desired to nurse those who might be injured, but the manager ordered every one away.

JULY CORN CORNER EXCITES CHICAGO.

Prices Soared and Slumped in Rapid Succession in the Grain Pit--Corn Is Pouring In.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The corn pit was again the scene of a turbulent mob of grain speculators to-day. Prices soared skyward under the manipulation of the crowd that has cornered July options and as quickly dropped with a thud.

In the first ten minutes advances of 1 1/2 cents were made. In the next hour the prices slumped 3 cents.

Private elevators are making contract corn as fast as possible in order to grade in and overcome the congested condition. In three days 500,000 bushels have been made.

Just as earnest is the big bull clique to keep cash stocks out of this market. Country markets are rushing corn here to take advantage of the high prices, but opposed to this movement is that of the bull operators who are buying up cash and selling it at a discount to prevent large arrivals.

The close was at 65 1/2, two points lower than yesterday.

MANY SHOT IN FURIOUS PATERSON STRIKE RIOTS.

Barford's mills, just inside the city limits, at Cliff and Rip Van Winkle streets, were advanced upon by the mob, which numbered 2,000, and was being reinforced every minute.

Three policemen were on guard at this mill. Patrick Connell, a policeman, stationed outside the gate, was set upon by Tony Ross, a leader of the mob. Ross slit Connell's blouse from shoulder to waist with a sharp knife. He was arrested and hustled to jail.

BATTLE BEGINS.

While Connell was struggling with Ross the mob broke down the great gate, demolishing the barriers behind it and rushed on the factory. Two policemen stood guard. A leader of the mob fired at them.

This appeared to be a signal, for dozens of rioters drew revolvers and began firing at the policemen. It was here that Robinson was shot. The blue coats returned the fire and an Italian fell with a bullet hole through his neck. He was carried off by his companions and no trace of him can be found.

The mob stormed the mill, driving out the employees. Many of the women fainted and were trampled upon. Every window in the mill was broken and much machinery was damaged.

While this was going on Chief Graul was getting the police force together. He sent a squad in a patrol wagon, thinking that a few determined men could disperse the mob, but he had not reckoned on the size and desperation of the mob he was going to face.

The police had about as much effect on the rioters as a dam of sand would have upon a river. The mob had grown to enormous proportions and swarmed all over the mill district.

While the rioting was going on in the valley the Vigilance Committee at Haledon proclaimed a general strike in all the silk mills in Paterson, and runners were sent out with the news.

From the Lamford Mills the rioters marched to the establishment of Pegram & Meyer. They found the gates closed and the mill deserted, as the employees had been dismissed when the first news of rioting was received. Nevertheless the windows were broken, the fences were destroyed, and machinery was damaged.

At the mills of the New Jersey Silk Company, which were next in line of the mob's march, a score of policemen gathered and made a stout resistance. It was at this point that Harry Harris, the reporter, was shot. He was taking a photograph of the scene when a bullet struck him in the breast.

POLICE HELPLESS.

By this time there were 5,000 rioters in the mob and the police were powerless. Mayor Hinchcliffe ordered three men from each of the twelve fire companies in the city to reinforce the police. This put 180 men under the command of Chief Graul. All were armed with revolvers and heavy clubs, but it was beyond their strength to stop the onward march and no opposition was encountered by the rioters when the mills of Levy Bros. and the Empire Silk Company were wrecked.

At a place called Bunker Hill the police charged the mob and a fusillade of bullets was exchanged between them. A milkman who was driving by, was shot in the back and seriously wounded. Arthur Barabough, a steamfitter, who was viewing the battle from a distance, was shot through the face.

Delirious with success the mob was absolutely wild at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Chief Graul was of the opinion that there was no sign of any inclination on the part of the strikers to do anything but destroy property.

"If we could get them all in one place we could smash them out and break up the rioting," said the chief, but they are so spread out and my force is so small that I am as good as helpless. I don't think it will be necessary to call out the militia. I have been assured by the reputable strike leaders that the strikers are conservative elements, are being held and that help will be volunteered to me. When the real leaders get among these people they will stop their disorder."

As the Chief was speaking word came that the mob was marching on Dexter & Lambert's mill, and that preparations were being made to set it on fire. It was reported that a woman had been killed in a clash between the strikers and the police.

THREAT TO WAYLAY AND ROB A GIRL.

Miss Hart was walking along Eighth avenue, near Seventh street, a week ago when she was approached by a man who appeared to be a laborer. The man stopped her and presenting a card, asked Miss Hart if she was the person whose name appeared on it. She looked at the card, saw that it contained her name and answered yes.

Thereupon the man turned and walked away without making any explanation. On the following day Mr. Hart received a letter, in which it was stated that unless $5,000 was paid to the writer Miss Hart would be waylaid and robbed where she least expected it. The letter named a place where the money was to be delivered to the signer.

Miss Hart is in the habit at times of carrying considerable sums of money, which belong to her father. It is presumed that some person who is more or less familiar with the details of Mr. Hart's business wrote the threatening letter.

Mysterious Letter to Contractor Hart, of Brooklyn--Demand Made for $5,000--Threatens Daughter.

Contractor Charles Hart, of No. 118 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, is worried over a threat to waylay and rob his daughter, Alice, who is twenty-one years old and assists him in his business.

CANNOT FIND CHIEF ENGINEER

De Varona, of Brooklyn Water Department, Was Wanted at Smith Hearing.

I. M. De Varona, Chief Engineer of the Brooklyn Water Department, cannot be found.

None of the officials of the Water Department could locate him to-day. He is wanted to give testimony in the case of John M. Smith, Superintendent of Conducts and Reservoirs, under charges by Commissioner Dougherty.

Commissioner Dougherty sent word to De Varona that he wanted him to be present at the hearing to-day. De Varona did not appear.

Telephone messages were sent to Brooklyn, but at the local office nothing was known concerning the whereabouts of De Varona. All places in the department to which De Varona might have gone were called up but De Varona could not be located.

It has been persistently rumored that after the charges against Smith have been heard, De Varona will be brought up for trial on charges of obstructing justice.

It is not necessary for the Commissioner to bring charges against De Varona when he accepted the position of chief engineer he went on the exempt list and is not protected by the Civil Service rules.

His old position was under the Civil Service and apparently De Varona took the new one without knowing that he was no longer protected.

CITY EMPLOYEE AN EMBELZLER.

Warrant Asked for the Arrest of Man in the Health Department Accused of $2,000 Theft.

Health Commissioner Lederle and Assistant District Attorney Trench appeared before Magistrate Crane in the Centre Street Police Court this afternoon and asked for a warrant for the arrest of an employee of the Health Department. The employee, whose name was not made public, is charged with embezzlement. While it was stated that the amount was less than $2,000, it is reported that it may be much more than that. A warrant was issued and a detective was sent to arrest the suspected person.

REJECT DEATH CERTIFICATE.

Board of Health Refuses to Accept One and Will Investigate Case.

A death certificate made out by Dr. Thomas J. Lenox Kennedy, of St. Vincent's Hospital, was rejected by the Board of Health, and the death of the patient will be investigated by the Coroner's Office. Dr. Kennedy certified that John Pritchard, thirty-one years old, had died in St. Vincent's Hospital from subserous and lobar pneumonia. An employee of the Merritt Burial Company, which has possession of Pritchard's body, told a clerk in the Coroner's Office that the dead man had a brother in this city who was a wealthy grocer. The Coroner's Office will ascertain the circumstances that led to Pritchard's death.
